PolicyLab Creates Four New Research Portfolios

Date:

Tuesday, December 05, 2017

PolicyLab is about to enter our 10th year, and we're excited to share some new changes happening at our center! You probably noticed our refreshed site, but we also want to highlight that we've created four new research portfolios: Health Care Coverage, Access & Quality; Intergenerational Family Services; Adolescent Health & Well-Being; and Health Equity. We believe that impacting the health and well-being of children and families starts with the difficult stories we hear in clinical practices and ends with solutions that policymakers and other stakeholders can implement. That means the messaging that we use to disseminate our research has to resonate with our audiences, which can be challenging in an ever-changing policy landscape. Our goal is that these new portfolios make it easier to identify and address the most pressing needs facing children, adolescents and families.
