

Read All About It: Our Experts in the News

Date:

Tuesday, October 25, 2022

Interested in catching up with PolicyLab researchers? Recently, several of our experts have been featured in local and national media outlets discussing numerous topics related to child and families health. Follow along below:

Program Manager Tara Dechert, MS, wrote a “letter to the editor” for the Philadelphia Inquirer explaining the need for a multi-system effort to address issues with access to high-quality child care.

Faculty Scholar George Dalembert, MD, MSHP, co-wrote an opinion piece for STAT related to the authors’ recent New England Journal of Medicine essay, outlining how health systems can help close the racial wealth gap.

Scientific Director Meredith Matone, DrPH, MHS, was quoted in a Philadelphia Inquirer article highlighting the value and impact of home visiting programs funded by the Maternal, Infant, and Early Childhood Home Visiting program on Pennsylvania families.

Director David Rubin, MD, MSCE, discussed rising COVID-19 infections and hospitalizations in the northern U.S. and a potential resurgence this winter in an interview with NPR.

Stay tuned to our Press Room to read or listen to the latest interviews with members of the PolicyLab team!